Leon D. Bernard

DEC 11, 1940 - DEC 20, 2023

Leon D. Bernard, born on December 11, 1940, in Anse-a-Foleur, Haiti, to late Mother and Father of Cephile Jean Guillaume; and Joseph Bernard.

Leon D. Bernard earned his education in Canada and was a professor in Congo Africa for many years. Leon D. Bernard lived many years in New Jersey where he majored in post-secondary studies in psychology. Leon Bernard was a psychology major professor at Barry University; and a prominent figure in the field. His untimely departure at the age of 83 leaves a void in the family, the academic community, and in the lives of all those who had the privilege of knowing him.

Leon was an exceptional individual who devoted his life to the pursuit of knowledge and understanding. He possessed an insatiable curiosity, and a passion for exploring the depths of the human mind. As a psychology professor at Barry University, he inspired countless students with his wisdom, dedication, and innovative teaching methods. Leon's impact extended beyond the classroom. He was a prolific writer, using his pen to delve into the complexities of the human psyche and shed light on various psychological phenomena. His contributions to the field of psychology were invaluable, and his research papers and articles continue to shape the way we perceive and understand the human mind.

Beyond academia, Leon found solace in the world of radio. As a radio talk host, he captivated audiences with his insightful discussions and thought-provoking analysis. His ability to engage listeners and stimulate their minds through the gospel he shared was truly remarkable. His voice resonated with authenticity and a deep understanding of the human condition. Outside of his professional pursuits, Leon was a man of many passions. Writing was not only his profession but also his beloved hobby.

Leon D. Bernard will be remembered as a compassionate individual. He possessed a rare ability to make people feel seen and understood, leaving a lasting impact on all those who crossed his path. Leon D. Bernard leaves behind a legacy that will continue to inspire and shape the minds of future generations. He will be deeply missed by his family, friends, colleagues, and students, who
